Moral Segment in The Daily Debate--
As Ada tells it

We teased Mom about the new boyfriend.

Especially about “having sex yet?”

“None of your business!”

My sister Betts laughed. “What’s the difference?
We’re all whores anyway!”

Her boyfriend, Koogie, sneered, “I been trained to be one in Catholic school.”

“A man can’t be one!” insisted Betts.

“Besides, I thought you majored in Guilt!” I wisecracked.

My steady, Radcliffe, instructed us, “You’re all mixing up morality with statistics. If everyone’s a whore, then there ARE no whores!”

Has Doctor Degree, so no arguing with him.

“Big deal!“ Mom spat when I had told her earlier how he knows every freakin thing! “Brains got your father six feet under!”